He wrote, "At no point does the film lapse into cruelty; the violence is neither excessive nor gratuitous. As a work of art, it stands firmly on its own". Indiaglitz.com called it "a crowd-pleasing, enjoyable high school comedy" and wrote that "the only downside is the confusing first half but the charming second half, which is laced with romance, humour and emotions, makes the wait for the movie worth it." Taran Adarsh of Bollywood Hungama gave the film 3.5 stars out of 5, writing that the film was "a fresh outing" and that "Every scene has been thoughtfully designed for maximum impact and here is where the screenplay does its best work." He concluded that the film "wins on its own terms". Box office Timepass was the highest grossing film of 2014, earning in its first week and grossing in its first weekend.
